A giant roadrunner in celebration of CSUB.

Tyree Boyd-Pates, a 22 year-old worker at the University Outreach booth, enjoyed a sunny day while celebrating CSUB.

The Athletics Department's booth filled with information for prospective student athletes.

One of the several decorations on the CSUB campus.

A balloon decoration the colors of CSUB.

A lunch setting for the families of potential CSUB students.

A bounce house for kids to play in throughout the day.

The second bounce house coming to life as it fills full of air.

The Mathematics Department's booth is completely empty on the busy day on campus.

Daniel Alexander, 20, works for University Police and is standing of to the side of his secluded booth.

These portable bathrooms were odd sights and were rarely, if at all, used.

Marcus Sparks, an 18-year-old freshman, helped Dale Austin, a senior in his 30's, execute training exercises involving a parachute.

Dale Austin and Taeshon Lee, a freshman at CSUB, celebrated CSUB in their own way by using the campus to improve their physical conditioning.

Taeshon powerfully started his sprint with his perfect running form.

Marcus and Taeshon ended the first part of the day of training on a high note as do the families attending Celebrate CSUB.
